

Wednesday 24th June 2020

Good morning! We're halfway through the week already! Below are today's tasks. For Literacy we will have a focus today on writing. For Numeracy we will be revisiting place value again.

Literacy

If you haven't already listened to our story of the week, please do so now at;

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=HfIuIQaOLlY&t=69s>

For today's task, I'd like you to write about what you think happens to the stick Stanley throws into the water. Do you think it washed up somewhere and someone found it? Or did an animal use it for something? Before you begin, talk to someone about the ideas you have and plan your story.

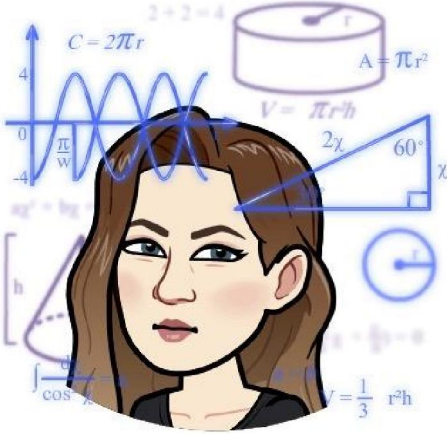

You can then begin writing your story. Remember to say your sentence(s) out loud to make sure they make sense before you begin writing. Always start with a capital letter, use finger spaces between words, and end each sentence with a full stop.

When you are finished, create an illustration for your writing. Imagine your story has been included as an extra page in the book. What would the picture look like? Make it as detailed as possible.

Other writing activities you may do today include;

1. Using sticks to practise your letter and number formation in sand or mud.
2. Practising formation using Doorway Online.
3. Practise writing your full name.

Numeracy

We will revisit Place Value again today. You all did so well on Monday's task so well done! Usually we would use lots of maths materials for this topic in class, such as Numicon or cubes. You're all doing so well to adapt to online working!

Today there are two Place Value activities on See-Saw.

One is an interactive activity and the other is a worksheet.

Next have a go at this Place Value game on TopMarks. Click on 'practise' then under 'Numbers' 'T O'. You will then have to create a number using the numbers on screen.
